Managing Payment Methods

Billing and Payments

Who can manage payment methods

Only an organization owner or billing administrator can add, update, or remove payment methods. A regular member should ask an authorized administrator to make billing changes.

Add a payment method

Go to Settings > Billing > Payment methods, select Add payment method, and complete the secure payment form. Save the method and verify that it appears in the list. Payment credentials are handled by the payment provider.

Update an expired card

Choose the existing method, select Edit or Replace when available, and enter the updated details in the secure form. If editing is not available, add the new method and set it as the default before removing the old one.

Default method

The default payment method is used for eligible automatic renewals and invoices. After changing the default, confirm that the correct method is labelled Default. Updating a method does not necessarily retry an invoice that already failed.

Removing a method

A method may not be removable if it is the only valid method for an active subscription or an unpaid invoice requires it. Add a replacement and resolve outstanding billing requirements first.

Support boundaries

Support cannot enter payment details on behalf of customers, collect card credentials by email, or guarantee that a bank will authorize a transaction.
