Tax Details and Billing Profiles

Billing and Payments

Billing profile

The billing profile contains the legal organization name, billing address, and tax identification details supplied by the customer. Billing administrators can review and update the profile in Settings > Billing > Billing profile.

Tax calculation

Taxes may depend on the customer's location, supplied tax details, and applicable rules. Support should explain where profile information is managed but must not invent a tax rate or provide a definitive tax determination when the account-specific facts are unavailable.

Updating tax information

Enter accurate information in the billing profile and save the changes. If a tax identifier is rejected, verify the country and formatting, then contact Billing Operations with the organization name and the displayed error. Do not ask the customer to post sensitive tax documents in a public channel.

Previously issued invoices

A profile update generally applies to future billing documents. It does not automatically amend an already issued invoice. For a historical invoice correction, request review by Billing Operations and identify the invoice number and requested correction.

Currency and totals

The invoice displays the currency used for that billing transaction. Support must refer to the currency shown on the invoice and should not estimate foreign-exchange conversion amounts.

Example

A customer updates the company address on 12 May and asks why an invoice issued on 3 May still shows the old address. Explain that profile updates do not automatically rewrite previously issued invoices and offer a Billing Operations review.
