Refund Eligibility and Requests

Subscriptions and Refunds

Fictional training documentation for a local RAG demonstration.

General rule

Refunds are reviewed individually by Billing Operations. A refund is not automatic merely because a subscription was cancelled or a customer did not use the service.

How to request review

Collect the organization name, invoice number, payment date, amount and currency shown on the invoice, reason for the request, and any cancellation confirmation. Route the request to Billing Operations; do not promise approval or a processing date.

Duplicate charges

If a customer reports two charges, ask for the invoice numbers or payment references and the dates. Do not conclude that a duplicate charge occurred based only on a pending bank authorization. Escalate confirmed or unresolved cases to Billing Operations.

Refund status

If a refund has been approved, share only the status available in the billing system. Bank posting times can vary, so do not promise an exact date unless an approved policy provides one.

Non-refundable assumptions

This guide does not define universal refund windows or guarantee refunds for any particular reason. If the customer asks about a deadline or exception not stated here, say that Billing Operations must confirm the applicable terms.

Example response

“I can send your request to our Billing Operations team for review. Please share the invoice number and a brief explanation of the charge. I cannot promise an outcome before the review is complete.”